REPUBLICANS AND PROGRESSIVES

Take Steps For 'Getting Together' In Louisville.

Equal Representation On City and County Committee Is Planned.

Abandoning a plan to reorganize the Republican party machinery in Louisville by dividing the territory into small districts of five precincts and electing a member from each, the City and County Committee of that district Tuesday night named from its membership a subcommittee to confer with a like committee from the Republican Progressive 'Get-together' Club of Louisville relative to the addition of twenty-three names to the Republican City and County Committee. At present the membership is twenty-one, and it is proposed to increase it to forty-four.

The 'Get-together' Club, made up largely of Progressives, was formed some time ago with a view to setting on foot plans to a union of Republicans and Progressives in this district in the coming election. Edward Hahn, formerly a strong Progressive, is president of the club, and he and other members attended the meeting last night. Mr. Hahn made it plain that before the Republicans can expect the support of the Progressives they must give equal representation on the Republican City and County Committee.

There was not a murmur on the part of any of the Republicans present last night against this suggestion. It finally being concurred in unanimously. Those named by the Republican City and County Committee as members of the subcommittee to confer with a like committee from the 'Get-together' Club were Col. Albert Scott, Joseph Conkling and Thomas A. Ryan. The 'Get-together' Club has yet to name its subcommittee of three. The two subcommittees are to meet and submit their recommendations to the Republican City and County Committee within two weeks.

As a further indication that those composing the Republican City and County Committee are willing to throw down the bars and meet the Progressives of this district more than half way, if necessary, the Committee, after representatives of the 'Get-together' Club had departed, elected R. C. Cannetz, secretary of the 'Get-together' Club, a member of the Republican City and County Committee to succeed Judge W. G. Dearing, who is now a resident of Whitesburg, Ky. Judge Dearing was chairman of the City and County Committee, and Arthur E. Hopkins, a young Republican attorney of Louisville, will be elected to succeed him in that capacity.

Following the meeting last night there seemed to be some difference of opinion regarding whether the twenty-three persons to be added to the City and County Committee shall be Progressives. In the event such is done there would be two more Progressives on the Republican committee than Republicans. The general impression among those who lingered after the meeting, however, was that both parties are to have equal representation on the committee, making the membership twenty-two Republicans and twenty-two Progressives.

Various objections were voiced against the plan to divide the district and elect, in all of the five, captains who would compose the Fifth District Committee. One objection was that a reorganization thus effected would cost considerable money, and another was that there might be such a lack of interest in the matter that the vote in each of the small districts might reflect discredit on the strength of the Republican party at a time when it is important that the party make as good a showing as possible. There also seemed to be considerable doubt as to whether Progressives, under the Republican party law, could participate in such an election of members of the Republican City and County Committee.

Many speeches were made at the meeting, the tenor of all of them being that unless the Republicans and Progressives of this district pull together in the coming election the Democrats will win without a struggle. Mr. Hahn, spokesman for those Progressives willing to unite with the Republicans, said that the Republican City and County Committee, in agreeing to give the Progressives equal representation on the committee, had shown a spirit of fairness that would go a long way toward sinking differences, and predicted that little trouble would be experienced in bringing about a united front against the Democrats next November.

The 'Get-together' Club has a membership of about 150, composed of Progressives and Republicans, and will hold a meeting at club headquarters, 311 West Jefferson street, Saturday night. At that time it is probable that the club will name its subcommittee of three members to confer with the Republican subcommittee.

As president of the 'Get-together' Club, Mr. Hahn invited the members of the Republican City and County Committee to attend the meeting Saturday night.

Mr. Albert Scott, member of the City and County Committee, said after the meeting last night that the plan giving to the people of the Fifth district a representative on the City and County Committee had not been abandoned. He probably would be elected to the four seats of 2000 after the coming November election. All Progressives who desire to unite with the Republicans, that is, to say, giving them the right to participate in the election of members of the Republican City and County Committee after the November election.

Republicans throughout the State will hold mass conventions June 12 for the purpose of naming delegates to the Republican State platform convention to be held in Lexington on June 15.

IS CHARGED WITH FALSE TESTIMONY

Davern Arrested After Declaring No Repeating Done In Terre Haute Election.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 29.—William Davern, a witness for the defendant Fred Morrison in the Terre Haute election fraud trial in the Federal Court, was held to the Federal grand jury on the charge of perjury after he had completed his testimony to-day. Judge Anderson fixed his bond at $5,000.

United States District Attorney Dailey made the request after Davern, who was the Democratic election clerk in the precinct in which Morrison served as inspector, testified that there was no repeating to his knowledge and that Morrison had not worked the lever of the voting machine. He also denied that he knew that ninety-one names not on the registration books had been voted or that forty-one names and registration numbers had been voted twice in the precinct, as Mr. Dailey contended the election records show. Mr. Dailey said the witnesses had contradicted at least twenty Government witnesses.

Fred Morrison, an employee of the street department, and John M. Masselink, sealer of weights and measures and former member of the State Legislature, defendants, testified to-day.

Morrison said he operated the lever on the voting machine only when he himself voted, although a number of Government witnesses testified that he worked the lever all day. He also denied knowledge of repeating of voters and that he passed out cards on which the repeaters were paid $1 by Sheriff Dennis Shea, another defendant. The witness also repudiated the testimony of Frank Tryon, who served for a time on the Election Board and who testified that he protested to Morrison about operating the lever.

Masselink testified that he made out the body of a number of applications for registration, but denied that he ever affixed the signature. The Government produced a number of applications and contended that signature was placed on the applications by Masselink.

COURT WARNS GANGSTERS

Judge Anderson Will Protect Defendants.

Defense Witness "Fizzes" Embarrassing Attorney A. O. Stanley.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 30.—Judge A. B. Anderson at the trial of the Terre Haute election case in Federal Court, said this afternoon that he felt it his duty "to take care of some of the defendants" after two Terre Haute policemen who had been called by the defense to testify to the reputation of some of the men who have pleaded guilty on their cross-examination by United States District Attorney Frank V. Dailey, gave evidence considered favorable to the Government.

After the jury had retired, the judge announced that he would release the six defendants who have pleaded guilty and who were taken from the jail in Terre Haute and brought to Indianapolis to testify on a writ of habeas corpus and permit them to return to Terre Haute.

"And I say now," added the court, "that there shall be nothing done to them over there. I have already been reliably informed that the defendants, Sheriff Dennis Shea and City Judge Thomas Smith, while they were in jail a few days ago, tried to influence these boys. They promised to take care of them if they would tell certain things. I shall take care of them, and I warn any policeman, Sheriff or citizen not to molest them."

Ell H. Reiman, the defendant who was declared elected Judge of the Circuit Court by ten votes, had completed his direct examination and was being cross-examined when court adjourned. He denied every item of evidence produced against him by the Government.

Thomas Barry, one of the patrolmen, on cross examination said he felt that his hands were tied six months before the election. He said his prisoners frequently laughed and said they would be released in a few minutes. He said he captured a man wanted for highway robbery and within ten minutes after he put him in the patrol wagon he met him on the street.

Barry and Fred Armstrong, the latter a detective, both testified that the reputation "for truth, veracity and morality of former Chief of Police Holler, and Assistant Chief of Police Nugent, who have testified for the Government, was bad." Both witnesses, on cross-examination, said they had heard that the two received their positions from Mayor Donn M. Roberts, one of the twenty-eight on trial, as a reward for their services in the election in which Roberts was elected Mayor.

It was at this point the court said: "I feel it is my duty in this case to take care of some of these defendants, when I see witnesses put on the stand to testify as that witness has testified truthfully. These men are presumed to be innocent until the jury finds them guilty. I feel that somebody ought to defend them. There are men on trial not so guilty as others. Is it possible they are to suffer for this sort of thing?"

"This is the most remarkable thing I have ever seen—to put a witness on the stand to prove a perfectly obvious fact that these sluggers and repeaters, who have come here and confessed their shame—to prove a perfectly obvious fact that they have a bad reputation for truth and veracity and have developed on cross-examination this terrible condition of affairs."

A few minutes later, A. O. Stanley, counsel for the defense, asked a question put by Mr. Dailey to Armstrong, and was told by the court: "You ought to have kept the witness off the stand. The objection is overruled."

A number of election inspectors were introduced to testify that they did not receive instructions from Roberts to operate the lever on the voting machine. One of these, Jno. H. Rogers, admitted on cross-examination that he received such instructions at a meeting at which Roberts talked.

Two defendants—George Ehrenhardt, a member of the Board of Public Works, and John E. Green—were among the nine witnesses who testified today. In reply to questions by A. O. Stanley, chief counsel for the defense, Green and Ehrenhardt denied specifically the Government's charges.

Green stated that he was not connected with the Terre Haute city administration. He admitted that he, as the election inspector, worked the lever on the voting machine for about two hours, but quit when it was pointed out that he was violating the law. The defendant also asserted that he did not see how anyone voted and that he did not hand cards to voters, which they could redeem at $1 each on the outside. He also denied talking with Mayor Roberts in regard to the duties of election inspectors.

The witness was undergoing a severe cross-examination at the hands of District Attorney Dailey, when court recessed at noon. It was brought out that Green has indicted himself pending against him for criminal operations; that he has conducted a pawn shop from which stolen goods had been recovered; that he operated a gambling device with a cipher, and that he had been held for killing a man, but had been exonerated by the coroner.

Ehrenhardt, who was registration inspector as well as election inspector, denied signing voters on election day by using the lever. A number of applications for registration, which the Government asserts were signed by Ehrenhardt, were shown the defendant on cross-examination, but he denied they were in his hand-writing.

Other witnesses testified to the character of the defendants and election officials who served in the precincts with Green and Ehrenhardt.

CAPT. E. W. CLARK IS FOUND GUILTY

Hopkinsville Man Given Long Sentence For Betrayal of Girl.

Hopkinsville, Ky., March 29.—Only thirty minutes were taken by the jury in the case of Capt. E. W. Clark, charged with betraying a girl under 16, to bring in a verdict of guilty late this afternoon.

His punishment was fixed at confinement in the State penitentiary for an indeterminate sentence of not less than ten nor more than twenty years less one day.

Mias Albert Mitchell was the accusing witness.

The entire day today was taken up in hearing two speeches in the case, C. H. Bush for the defense, taking up the morning and Commonwealth's Attorney Denny P. Smith arguing for four hours this afternoon, this closing the case except for the jury's decision.

The great crowds which have attended the case from the first packed the court room to the last inch all day. All the speeches were masterly efforts, but Mr. Smith's speech this afternoon was considered one of the most severe arraignments ever delivered here.

The defendant received the verdict without visible emotion, but his wife and sister gave way to their feelings.

This has been one of the most notable cases ever tried here. The testimony has been sensational and deep interest has centered in it from the first. The trial was called last Wednesday morning, but the first two days were taken up in securing a jury, two special venues having to be summoned. The hearing of evidence was begun Friday morning and concluded soon after noon Saturday, since which time the speeches have occupied all the time of the court's sittings.

Capt. Clark was charged with seducing Mias Clark before she was sixteen years of age. At the time the alleged betrayal occurred he was coach of the High School basketball team of which she was a member. An appeal is expected to be taken.

NEW WRITER ON SOCIALISM

Discusses Remedies For Many Social Evils.

Unique Remedies For Intemperance and Divorce.

Hartford, Ky., E. F. D. No. 5, Mar. 30.—Editor Republican—It has been some time since I have written anything political for the readers of your excellent paper. I have turned my thoughts towards the noble things of life—Christianity, co-operation and Socialism.

It is a shame that we have political quacks in this country. It is a ridiculous shame that we pay them five and seven thousand dollars to misrepresent the taxpayer in Congress, whose income is less than $500 a year.

When you step on the dogs tail you can tell by the tone of his yell how bad he has been hurt. It seems that Socialism has stepped on someone at Simons, Ky. His great monumental equipage enables him to make the truth look like a lie, and the lie like a truth. Yes, men will inhale falsehood more readily than truth. That is why the worker is made poor. The same thing has made the shirker a millionaire.

We have been tormented by several different isms in the last 50 years. The greatest of all tormenting isms is capitalism (our present financial system). It torments the farmer when he sells and the miner when he buys. This system first considers the rights of capital. Labor is of secondary importance, consequently labor is defeated on the industrial field. Mr. Lincoln said, "Labor is prior to and independent of capital. Capital is but the fruit of labor, and could never have existed had labor not first existed. Labor is superior to capital and deserves the first consideration."—Annual message to Congress, 1863. If capitalism is wrong then Socialism, its opposite, must be right.

It is Socialism that the middle man most fears. Often we hear of a two-by-four political quack howling about the Socialist position on prohibition. We Socialists believe that before we can have prohibition that will prohibit we will have to stop the manufacture of the stuff that has caused the downfall of millions. The Socialists would let all the people vote on the temperance question, just the same as we would let them vote on all other questions of social importance. What would be more fair than that?

Again the political quacks would have you believe that we Socialists would make each woman every man's wife, and each man every woman's husband. We most emphatically deny that. Don't think for one moment dear reader, that we would have our mothers, our wives, or sweethearts, to consort together like the beasts of the jungle. We say no, that we don't favor such, ten thousand times no! If the gentlemen of Simons will show me where the Socialist platform favors the tearing down of our present marital relations, then I will eat the platform, and be a Socialist no more. We Socialists are in favor of free love in the sense that it is the gift of nature. It comes from the heart just the same as the light comes from the sun. Did you buy the love that you have for your wife down at the store? If so please send me a dime worth by Uncle Sam, so that I might get a wife. Love isn't sold up in this part of the sticks. We Socialists believe that you should marry, young readers, we think an individual becomes a better citizen after he is married but you should be careful for the present system might starve you into suing for a divorce.

Certainly we have a religious creed. We would plant the flowers of happiness about the home of the worker. You plant the flower of sorrow upon the graves of the dead. You had better come over and help us make life a pleasure on this earth. Our religion fights war, the greatest of all sins. Our God commanded you not to kill, but you support the army that trains our young men how to kill. Brother! you can't kill the man across the border and hide your sins in the folds of any flag. You can't support God and the present system at the same time. I fear that your religion is not practical. It is eighteen inches too high. It comes from the mouth but not from the heart. It is true that some Socialists are disbelievers, but it is also true that Democrats and Republicans have infidels within their ranks. You can only judge a political party by the platform upon which it stands. It would make the Christian Republicans and Democrats blush with shame if they knew the religious views of some of their greatest men such as Jefferson, Ingersoll and Lincoln.

Yes, our financial system is badly wrong, our great money men are confiscating indirectly the property of the producing class. Now brother working man, I want to reason with your intelligence. We create all wealth. Then all wealth should be ours, and would be under an equitable system. There is one thing left for us to do, that is to hang together at the ballot box. Our voting strength is much more powerful than that of the enemy. We can capture the government and use it to free us from the financial parasites of the earth. If our government can sell stamps at cost, it can sell cigars at cost. If it can buy the paper out of which stamps are made, then it can buy tobacco out of which cigars are made. If it can make stamps, it can make cigars. Mr. workingman how do you like what they give you? The Republicans give us too much work. The Democrats give us too much rest. The Socialists would give you all the rest you would want and all the work you might need. If you don't change your views you will stay in the rut of poverty.

I am yours for a co-operative commonwealth. R. A. DAVIS.

PASSENGER STEAMER VICTIM OF GERMANS

Story of Heartless Act By German Sailors Almost Unbelievable.

Cardiff, Wales, March 30.—One of the Falaba's passengers, in telling of their experiences, said that when the submarine ordered the passengers to take to the boats, the boats were lowered immediately, and the passengers were served with life-belts, but no one was allowed to take any personal effects.

"Then followed a horrible scene," said the passenger. "Some of the boats were swamped and the occupants were thrown into the sea. Several were drowned almost immediately."

"Barely 10 minutes after we received the order to leave the ship, I heard a report and saw the vessel heel over. The Germans had actually fired a torpedo at her at a range of about 100 yards when a large number of passengers, the captain and other officers were still distinctly to be seen aboard."

All the passengers and officers say that the submarine fired a torpedo before all of the boats were lowered and while many persons were still aboard the steamer. One officer said: "I was sitting in a boat which was suspended from the davits and was waiting for two women passengers, when another officer shouted, 'Look out,' and then I saw the bubbles marking the track of a torpedo."

"There was a tremendous crash and the boat fell from the davits and turned over, throwing the passengers and crew into the water. The water was frightfully cold, and there were many who died from exposure."

2,000 Gallons of Beer Destroyed.
Mt. Sterling, Ky., March 30.—Deputy Collector Wells and posse destroyed two large stills, one of 125 gallons and the other of sixty gallons and the other of sixty gallons capacity, in a raid on Shaw's and Cane Creek last night. The stills were located in caves, but the "shiners" had been warned by pistol shots and got away. Both stills were running and 2,000 gallons of beer were turned out. Both stills were of copper and were the largest ever brought into the city.

HEROIC RESCUE OF 47 MINERS

Expert Rescuers of Bureau
of Mines Show Bravery.

Men Entombed Four Days Saved
From Poisonous Gases by
'Helmet Men.'

Washington, April 3.—The saving from a terrible death of forty-seven miners entombed for four days and four nights in the explosion-swept mine of the New River and Pocahontas Consolidated Coal Company, at Layland, West Virginia, recently by trained rescuers from the United States Bureau of Mines and other rescuers, discloses a type of heroism that is not equaled anywhere in the annals of industrial history, a heroism of almost everything sort in the isolated mining villages of the country, but hardly known to the outside world.

The bravery of men who go down to the sea in ships has been in prose and poetry since the world began, probably because there is hardly a vessel who has not witnessed the tragedy of the sea at some time or other, but the miners are in out of the way places, in the rugged fastnesses of the country, and the men who perform the heroic deeds work in the darkness of the underground where the eye of the nerverage citizen has never penetrated.

If of little wonder then that the news of an explosion in a coal mine with a hundred or two hundred men killed carries but a fleeting interest to the reader and that he has forgotten about it long before the wails of the widows and orphans cease to echo through the little mining villages. But the million or more miners of the United States who follow the most hazardous of callings are not entirely forgotten for Uncle Sam, through the Federal Bureau of Mines, has at the miners' disposal, whenever a catastrophe occurs, highly organized corps of trained rescuers who carry oxygen-breathing apparatus which permits them to enter a mine immediately after an explosion and to penetrate poisonous gases that would otherwise kill in the twinkling of an eye.

It was on the morning of March 2 that word was received by D. J. Palmer, engineer in charge of Mine Rescue Car No. 8, at Glenum, West Virginia, that an explosion had occurred in the mine of the New River and Pocahontas Consolidated Coal Company. Fifteen minutes later the Norfolk and Western railroad had stopped all trains between Glenum and Kenova, a distance of 104 miles and had cleared the track. A special engine was attached and the rescue car was taken the entire distance to Kenova in three hours. At that point the car was turned over to the Chesapeake & Ohio, which had also prepared for a clear track. With the second largest engine in the world attached to the rescue car, the 133 miles between Kenova and Quinlan, nine miles from the scene of the disaster, was reached in three hours and sixteen minutes, which is said to be the record time on this mountain road. From there the rescue car was taken to Layland in about time and a few minutes later the rescuers were on the ground ready for serious work.

By the time the bureau's rescuers reached the scene, State Mine Inspector Earl Henry and a number of his assistants, were already there with the work of rescue started, the mine inspectors having general charge of the work. Shortly afterwards eleven miners from the mines of the United States Coal Company at Gary, West Virginia, who had previously been trained in rescue work by the Bureau of Mines men arrived and also James W. Paul, of Pittsburgh, Pa., engineer in charge of all the rescue work of the bureau of Mines. Paul at once organized the bureau's rescuers and the trained men from Gary, West Virginia, into three corps and offered the services of the men to Chief State Mine Inspector Henry and to the management of the mine. The efforts of the State inspectors and the bureau's men were directed at once toward repairing the damage done by the explosion and thus restoring the mine to its normal condition. Brattices or doors which guide the currents of fresh air had been blown down and these were re-established so that the fan might blow the poisonous gases from the mine.

It was a definite, serious campaign with the rescuers. Restore the mine as you went along and then you would be in a position to rescue entombed men. The old method of rushing madly into a gas-choked mine to be either overcome by the deadly fumes or killed, had gone. The men in charge of the rescuers stood outside of the mine with a map of the interior in their hands and studied it intently. They planned like the general staff of an army during battle. Decisions were made quickly and then the rescuers entered. All men with experience at such catastrophes know the folly of haste; they have also learned that a few trained rescuers cannot possibly save more than 100 entombed men from death unless they have the assistance of volunteers. Carrying their apparatus in their hands, the rescuers entered with volunteers, having with them a canary bird in a cage. Everybody watched for the canary, for it is known that as long as the bird is able to sit upon his perch, there is no danger to the men from gas poisoning, the canary being much more sensitive to gas than men. They proceeded until the bird began to show signs of distress, and at this point the volunteers without breathing apparatus retreated until they were in a safe atmosphere, the trained rescuers putting on their apparatus and pressing forward.

The rescuers made three different crews, one of them exploring the mine; the second remaining at the base with the volunteers to be ready for an emergency and the third crew put to bed in order to be able to relieve the first crew, as the men wearing the artificial breathing apparatus can work but two hours at a time. This work proceeded night and day, twenty-four hours until Saturday morning, the rescuers wearing the oxygen-breathing apparatus in advance of the volunteers without apparatus. The continued exploration by the trained rescuers at that time developed that the main entry had little wreckage and was in fairly good condition. This led Chief State Inspector Henry to order the reversal of the air current to permit the use of this entry. It was at this point that five weary and famished miners stumbled against James W. Paul, the head of the Bureau of Mine rescue service, who was but a short distance in the mine at the time. The five men were on their way out. They explained that after the explosion they had waited themselves in with the idea of keeping the poisonous gases from reaching them. As soon as the air had cleared through the efforts of the rescuers in bringing fresh air up to where they had barricaded themselves, they made their way out. The men told Paul that no others were alive in that part of the mine, but the work of the rescuers was redoubled.

One of the oxygen-rescue crews composed of Bureau of Mines men and trained miners from Gary, West Virginia, proceeded for more than a mile with their apparatus under orders from Paul. They were headed by Government Rescuer W. J. German. "Mr. Paul gave orders to take my crew straight to ten left," says German, "when we reached there we found a note in the main entry which read, 'Forty-two men alive in ten left, March 5, 1915, at 4:30 p. m.' After reading the note we advanced about 250 feet until we found a tight stone stopping. This proved to us that the men had bratticed themselves in behind it. I sent a member of the crew back to Mr. Paul asking him to send stretcher crews and blankets. When they returned with the state inspectors, we had torn down the stone stopping and had advanced up the entry about 200 feet further until we found a second stone stopping and could hear the entombed men inside. When we had a hole through the second stopping about two feet square, Inspector Holiday and two of his party crawled through so that I could help them through one at a time, with the assistance of my five apparatus men, whom I had ordered to continue working at tearing down the stopping in order to make the hole larger. I saw that the air had cleared quite considerably and helped the men through the hole and ordered each man to sit down close to the left rib. Each man obeyed orders and acted like a child. After the last man had come out, I counted the line of men which numbered forty-two. I then had all these men take hold of hands and placed my crew and Holiday's at intervals along the line to show the men light. I placed one of the Gary men and one of the inspector's crew at the end of the line and told the last man to follow them to the surface. I then went to the front of the line and advanced as quickly as possible to get stretcher crews organized to carry out the men that were becoming too weak to walk. I was very sick at the mine from the gas but waited at the pit mouth until the last man had reached the surface."

Another of the brave rescuers was Vitellus K. of the United States Coal Company, Gary, West Virginia, who accompanied German. In describing his experience he said: "When we tore down the last stopping, the first live man came sliding headfirst down the pile of slate. When he got through he asked me if we found the note that he had placed two days before and showed a piece of bark in his mouth which he had broken from the mine timbers. He had another piece in his pocket and he told me he had nothing to eat for four days but the bark, but he said he had had plenty of water.

"Coming out with the men we reached the sixth or seventh when old man Whalen felt too weak to walk, and I left one rescue man wearing a machine to attend to him until I could send a man with a stretcher to carry him out. Shortly after I left Whalen an Italian dropped out of the line. One of the rescuers attended to him and I administered oxygen from a bottle, taking the oxygen from one of the apparatus, when he felt better and walked another piece. At this same place the whole procession stopped for rest and I found one of the miners sitting on the left rib. He was telling me that his heart was about to give out. I let him breathe oxygen through the mouthpiece of my apparatus and a few minutes later he said, 'You have about saved me now, I feel fine.' After this he got up and commenced to walk out. In the meantime men with stretchers passed us and I instructed them about the two men who had been left behind. Men with blankets started to arrive and distribute them among the men to put around them when they got out the outside. We came to about 200 feet within the drift month where Dr. Lynott, the Bureau of Mines Surgeon, stopped the men, telling them to be cautious with their 'ears'; not to eat anything but hot soup or coffee and to lie down and sleep after getting out, and I, in broken Italian, told the Italians the same thing. The men got out of the mine all right. It was a pathetic sight, the rescued miners hugging and kissing the rescuers."

Although the rescuers were more than a mile from the entrance of the mine when they discovered the forty-two men, a crew consisting of H. R. Mason, Jr., assistant mining engineer of the Bureau of Mines and two trained miners from Gary, under orders passed further in the hope of saving more entombed men. That they were taking desperate chances is evident from what Mason said: "Thrills, Tossie and myself were by this time feeling rather weak and we sat down and turned on the oxygen. Tossie became completely exhausted and was forced to lie down on the track, while Thrills and myself sat down with him until he commenced to feel stronger. We proceeded once more and when we encountered a strip of loaded coal cars we were all so weak we had considerable trouble getting through the cars. Proceeding slowly another stop of five minutes was made at the seventh left where we all sat down against the rib and breathed deeply from our apparatus. We finally reached the outside of the mine after having been in two hours and a quarter and having traveled a distance of 16,200 feet wearing apparatus. We all suffered from weakness, high pulse and severe headache for six hours afterwards. No more live men were found in the mine."

Thomas Whalen, the oldest survivor and who had to be carried on a stretcher from the mine gave a dramatic statement of the experience of the entombed men: "I was working with my son John in Room 24, ninth entry, when we heard a rumbling sound," said Whalen. "We ran down to the main entry, but the heat was so great it took our breath; we made a hasty retreat in on the main entry but not before seeing dead bodies of four men who worked on a motor and whose bodies were stretched face downward with hands outstretched full length. The only thing I remember was the awful feeling that the top of my head was being lifted off, the feeding being one of terrible agony. My son was using a carbide lamp, while I used an oil lamp, which was extinguished by the force of the explosion, the other remaining burning."

"We ran back into No. 10 entry where we found forty other miners, mostly foreigners, who were crazed almost beyond control. By persistent begging they were made to go back beyond the trap door and get to work building good walls to barricade themselves against the afterdamp. They prepared themselves for the awful hours of awaiting death or the appearance of the rescue men, known to the miners as the 'Helmet Men.'"

"Some of the foreigners wanted to smoke cigarettes and put me all in danger and it was necessary to use force to prevent it. So great was our hunger and thirst that we would dig into the coal dust and get crumbs and egg shells thrown away at some meal probably several days or weeks before. While we were waiting for the rescue men, whom every man had implicit faith in, we would take turns at waiting and listening for what would mean to them life and loved ones. Many of the men broke down entirely and but for the leadership of my son they no doubt would have broken down the wall. On Friday it was decided to try to send out a man and a hole was made through the walls for the purpose. He carried out the written notice of the forty-two men being in the 10th entry, and left it at the mouth of the entry, where it was found by the rescue crew. On his way back he was overcome by the afterdamp but two others ran out and dragged him in through the barricades, which were again sealed. We did not hear the rescue party until they were half way through the inner wall, and then my son gave the order to start meeting them and little time was lost in complying with the order, despite our terribly weakened condition."

When asked how he felt when reached by the "Helmet Men", Whalen replied, "I can hardly remember anything because I was so weak and nervous and the awful sight of my dead friends on every hand took my memory completely away from everything else in the world."

When the story of the rescue work reached Secretary of the Interior Lane, who has direct supervision over the Bureau of Mines, he was moved to say:

"Out of the gloom of such a catastrophe, involving, as it appears, more than 100 human lives, the saving of forty-seven men comes almost as a benediction. I am proud of the brave fellows from the Bureau of Mines, who have been working heroically for several days to bring about this consummation. I am equally proud of their associates who had been trained in modern rescue methods by our men. For years it had been demonstrated that the old methods of rescue work not only did not save lives, but even cost the lives of many brave volunteers. The oxygen helmets worn by the trained rescuers, which permitted them to penetrate parts of the mine filled with poisonous gases where no other human being could go, are undoubtedly responsible for the saving of the miners. The bureau's men, always in advance of the volunteers, restored the ventilation in the mine, thus permitting the volunteers to advance. Presumably the entombed men had protected themselves from the deadly gases by the erection of temporary doors. Then when trained rescuers reached them, the way out of the mine was comparatively easy, as it had been restored to normal conditions as the rescuers proceeded. I have wired to the rescuers my heartfelt appreciation of their heroic efforts in saving these lives."

There are throughout the country eight specially fitted rescue cars belonging to the Bureau which respond at once with their crews to the call for assistance. In addition there are six rescue stations in the coal fields which send trained rescuers to the scene of disaster. And when the rescuers are not busy at a disaster they are visiting the mining camps and training the miners in the use of the artificial breathing apparatus so that the miners themselves become capable rescuers. It was this training of other miners by the Bureau of Mines that played a large part in the rescue of the entombed men at Layland, for eleven of the total crew of seventeen trained rescuers were volunteers from the mines of the United States Coal Company at Gary, W. Va.

The United States is not alone in this aid to the miners for the states themselves have an organization of state inspectors, whose duty it is to take charge at mine disasters, the Bureau of Mines rescuers working under the general direction of the state officials.

The Bureau of Mines rescuers, together with other rescuers trained by them, have saved from death, since the inauguration of the bureau in 1910, several hundred lives, the bureau's own men having rescued fully 150. These results are in marked contrast to the haphazard methods that were in use prior to the introduction of the oxygen-breathing apparatus into this country by Dr. J. A. Holmes, Director of the bureau. Then it was a frequent occurrence that brave, but unprotected rescuers rushed into the mines following explosions, only to be killed at once by the deadly gases. It is pointed out that at Hunna, Wyoming, eight or nine years ago, sixteen men were entombed in a mine and forty other miners rushed into rescue them, the result being that the entombed men and the rescuers too were killed. It was the same at the Cherry, Illinois, mine disaster just a few years ago. Before the trained rescuers had time to arrive, seven brave volunteers entered the mine cage only to be brought up from the bottom of the shaft dead a few minutes later. It was at this same disaster, however, that the trained rescuers from the Bureau of Mines brought twenty-two men alive to the surface after they had been entombed for seven days. The bureau itself has in its entire experience lost three brave rescuers, martyrs to the cause and but the other day another helmeted rescuer, belonging to a mining company at Price, Utah, died from exhaustion due to his strenuous work. Since the Bureau of Mines started its systematic efforts at rescue work, each disaster that occurred in this country has seen the plans of the bureau carried out with greater perfection, until with the previous experience behind them, the bureau's rescuers together with other men trained by the bureau on March 6 succeeded in bringing the forty-seven men from the mine at Layland, W. Virginia.

A movement has been started by the American Mine Safety Association to give every man who participated in the rescue work a gold medal. It is said that time and time again acts of personal heroism on the part of the rescuers have been called to the attention of the Carnegie Hero Commission and each time the commission declared that while the men undoubtedly deserve medals, the fact that they are professional rescuers and not mere citizens does not admit of giving them any reward. The men who are employed by the Bureau of Mines as rescuers engaged in the most hazardous of occupations have little to look forward to in form of reward. If they are killed at their work, the United States Government gives the widow a year's wages. The widow and orphans of a miner killed in an accident are provided for by the workmen's compensation acts, for the state takes care of the widow as long as she remains a widow, and the orphans until they are old enough to take care of themselves. In states where there is no compensation act, the widow has the right to sue and recover damages. This is denied the widow of the Federal rescuer for it is impossible to start a suit for damages against the Federal Government.

BRADLEY WILSON EMPLOYED TO ORGANIZE

New Burley Society Will De- cide On Cut Out.

Lexington, Ky., March 26.—Provisions for a cut-out of the 1916 crop of tobacco are contained in a tentative pledge, to be submitted to the planter of the state, considered here Thursday by the directors of the Tobacco Growers' association in an all-day session behind closed doors,
in their offices in the Phoenix hotel.
The pledge will be definitely determined upon at a second meeting of the directors here April 8.

Other sections of the pledge provide that the association shall act as agents to "grade sell or warehouse"
the tobacco of the association membership; shall borrow money on the warehouse tobacco, the amount of 50 per cent. of the appraised value to be advanced to the grower. The association will receive for its services
an amount not to exceed one-half of 1 per cent. of the sum of what tobacco may be sold for.

Bradley Wilson of Owensboro, was employed as manager of the organization department of the association created today. The directorate was divided into three committees. J. W.
Stout was elected treasurer of the association.

How A Valley And A Mountain Range Were Made.

The United States Geological Survey is making investigations which only mean direct returns of dollars and cents to the country but also involve numerous scientific problems of indirect though large economic importance. This is shown by numerous contributions to pure science particularly by the series of articles started within the last year or two,
entitled "Shorter contributions to general geology." One of the latest of this series—Professional Paper 90-K, entitled "The History of a Portion of Yampa River, Colorado, and its Possible Bearing on That of Green River," by E. T. Hancock, just published by the Survey—discusses how Yampa River, in Colorado
and the mountains which it crosses were formed.

The most remarkable feature of this valley and Green River valley,
of which it is a tributary, is that they completely transect high mountains. In other mountain ranges streams rise near the crest and flow outward, but the Yampa and Green flow from the outside into and across mountains. Now geologists have shown that most valleys are simply enlarged gullies which in thousands of years have been gradually washed

WOMEN FROM 45 to 55 TESTIFY

To the Merit of Lydia E. Pink- ham's Vegetable Com- pound during Change of Life.

Westbrook, Me. — "I was passing through the Change of Life and had pains in my back and side and was so weak I could hardly do my household work. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has done me a lot of good. I will recommend your medicine to my friends and give you permission to publish my testimonial." — Mrs. LAWRENCE MAR-TIN, 12 King St., Westbrook, Maine.

Manston, Wis. — "At the Change of Life I suffered with pains in my back and joints until I could not stand. I also had night-sweats so that the sheets would be wet. I tried other medicine but got no relief. After taking one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to improve and I continued its use for six months. The pains left me, the night-sweats and hot flushes grew less, and in one year I was a different woman. I know I have to thank you for my continued good health
ever since." — Mrs. M. J. BROWNELL, Manston, Wis.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots
and herbs, is unparalleled in such cases.

A Happy Home

(Read What Peruna Did)

Mrs. James P. Bennett, No. 1006
East Eighth St., Muscatine, Iowa,
writes:
"My health was so miserable for years that I was practically an invalid. We had no family, owing to my ill health. I was induced to give Peruna a trial, and found very quickly
that it was helping me.

I am

"I am now well and happy. We have a baby boy, which we believe is the direct consequence of my improved health. He is our first and only child, and if Peruna had not cured me of my ailments we should never have had him. I hope every suffering woman will give Peruna a trial, the same as I have."

out by the streams which flow
through them; also that mountains
throughout the earth have been made first by an upheaval of a portion of the earth's crust, and second,
by this process of washing out huge trenches or valleys across the upheaved area. Concerning Yampa and Green rivers, the question arises, Did they exist before the mountain area
was upheaved, and was the upheaval
so gradual that they were able to wash their valleys deeper as fast as the upheaval progressed, or did the upheaval take place long before these rivers were formed, and were the mountains buried under sand
and silt before these streams acquired their present courses?

The report referred to sets forth
much evidence gathered by the author and others which has a bearing on these questions, and from this evidence it appears that the mountain range long amides the river valleys, and that it was completely buried under great deposits of sand and silt before Yampa river came into existence. The evidence tends to show that when first formed these streams flowed across a flat high plain under which were buried the mountains of hard rock. In the course of geologic ages the streams
have washed away the sand and silt
from the surrounding country, leaving the mountains of hard rock standing as they are today. Because of the unyielding nature of the rocks in the mountains, the valleys are there narrow and canyon-like, whereas outside the mountains where the materials underlying the surface
were more easily washed, the valleys are broad and the streams have slight fall. It therefore appears that the mountains in this region are far older than the streams and valleys
which cut through them.

tained free on application to the Director of the Geological Survey,

Tax The Average Farmer Pays To Bad Roads.

If any farmer will take a few minutes he will realize that he himself is paying each year an enormous tax or toll to bad roads; and it is a tax that not only does not yield any return at all, but does himself and his property a positive harm.

Suppose we take a man who property is assessed at $1,000. Under the proposed bond issue if the maximum rate he is charged—35 cents on the $100 worth of property—his road tax for the year will be $3.50.

A man who owns $1,000 worth of property usually has a team of two horses or mules. Say this man lives five miles from market and makes one trip a week during the year. He usually makes more than this. In going to the market over the present system of roads he can only haul one-fourth of the amount which he can haul over a good road. It takes him from one to three hours longer to go and return from market
than it would over a good road; so that one each trip he will say that he loses three hours for himself and team in going to market and carries only half a load. Thus he would have to make two trips in order to get the amount to market which he would carry over a good road with one trip, and on the two trips he would lose six hours. Now any man and team is worth at least 30 cents an hour. In some places they are now charging 40 cents an hour.
Then six hours lost at 30 cents an hour is $1.80, which each farmer practically loses in each trip when he markets his produce. Averaging his trips through the mud during the year at 20 would make his tax to bad roads $36.00, which is about what he average farmer paying taxes on $1,000 worth of property loses during the year, in actual time on himself and his team and loss of time in not being able to carry a full load, to say nothing of the wear and tear on his team and harness and vehicle, the lack of opportunity of attending church when desired, the impossibility of his children reaching school regularly,
and the lack of opportunity for carrying on the social intercourse which is necessary to the life of every human being.

Another tax he pays to bad roads
is that in case of severe illness it is practically impossible to obtain a doctor in any reasonable time, so that his family is constantly running a risk of losing their lives in case of emergency because of the physical impossibility of getting a physician there within a reasonable time over the poor roads. All these later phrases cannot be reckoned in dollars and cents.—Joseph H. Pratt, state geologist of N. Carolina.

Domestic Trade the True King.

Two points of interest stand out in the report of President William M. Wood at the recent annual meeting of the American Woolen Co.
First, as to the ability of American factories to turn out all the cloth
the entire population of the United States—cloth equal in quality and style and durability to any fabric imported from abroad. Second, the emphatic conclusion that American producers of woolen textiles cannot hope to compete with the cheaper labor of Europe to any considerable extent in the markets of the world.

On these points President Wood, who knows, if any man knows, the truth of the matter, says:

There is enough and probably more than enough, woolen machinery
in this country to supply all the wants of the American people. There is no necessity for the importation of any woolen goods. Of late years American mills have made wonderful improvement in the fine goods manufacture, and competent authority maintains that so far as popular priced fabrics are concerned American cloths are superior in quality and durability to stimular fabrics
from Europe—a very gratifying situation. There has been no gain or advantage to the American people
as a whole because of increased importation of European woolen goods,
made possible by the new Tariff because of cheaper labor costs abroad;
but these increased importations
have been a serious injury to all American wool manufacturers.

After a determined effort to sell our fabrics in the open markets, of the world we have been forced to the conclusion that as a general proposition we are unable to compete with the low wage labor of Europe.
Certain few special fabrics can be sold abroad at times, but there is not the volume of business available to us to encourage the belief that we can become a factor in the export of cloth to European countries.
Our efforts must, therefore, be directed to securing to ourselves the market of the United States, the best and greatest market in existence.

It will be seen that in respect of woolen fabrics this country is industrially independent of the rest of the world. There is no need that a single dollar's worth of foreign cloth be imported. Under adequate protection not a dollar's worth would be imported. American labor would supply all American requirements.
The public would do its own work.
Then, as Abraham Lincoln put it,
"we should have both the goods and the money." What sensible and patriotic citizen would deny the great desirability of such a consummation?

Practical common sense, business sense, characterizes the judgement of President Wood on the subject of export trade. Industrial producers had best devote their attention and their talents to the recapture of the great domestic market of 100,000, 000 consumers and stop chasing the ignis fatuus of a foreign trade from which they are shut out by higher wages and greater production cost.
A hundred million Americans at home are, as consumers, worth more than half a billion of foreigners in any other part of the world. "Domestic trade is true king; foreign trade is a braggart."

Equalizing Matters.

In the testimony brought out in the trial of Donn M. Roberts, Democratic mayor of Terre Haute, Ind.,
who is charged with election frauds,
the following was brought out:

"One of the fellows who were busy repeating in Precinct A. Sixth ward, was a one-legged colored man, who voted eight times in the precinct; one time he came with a peg leg; another time he wore a cork
leg; the third time without anything
strapped to his leg; the fourth time,
an iron extension leg; another time
with one crutch; one time for the purpose of deception he wore glasses."

Nothing unfair about this. Roberts was merely endeavoring to equalize the Democratic treatment of the negro. In view of the fact that not one negro in eight is allowed to vote
south of the Ohio, the Terre Haute apostle of Jeffersonian democracy doubtless believed that it was only fair for one negro to vote eight times in the North.—National Re-

FRIDAY, APRIL 2.

Nobody salutes our flag now—nobody except the Belgians.

The bad road tax is the greatest tax on the farmer which he is compelled to pay.

As yet no one seems inclined to tackle Morrow for the Republican nomination for governor.

A recent issue of the Commoner contained 32 pages, 28 pages of which were devoted to speeches of Mr. Bryan.

Among the names being mentioned for the Republican presidential nomination Fairbanks seems to strike a popular chord in this locality.

Other counties are going to outclass Ohio on the road question unless we vote a bond issue in the near future in order to connect up with their macadam lines.

The rank and file of the Republicans and Progressives in Louisville will get together. There is abundant evidence of that. If Messrs. Vance, Axton, Holt and one or two others insist upon running themselves for State offices and voting for each other, there is no way to prevent it, we presume, and they will be welcome to all the fun to be gotten out of such a race.

We have received a number of commendatory letters on the editorial of last week dealing with the Republican race for governor. It is pretty well settled now that the effort to bring out opposition to Morrow, in order to cause trouble, has failed. In the mean time the Morrow boom gathers impetus and begins to look like it is time for the usual motion, "to make it unanimous."

It looks almost as embarrassing for Senator James as Editor Knott, with the present field of Democratic candidates for governor to select from. The race will be between Stanley and McChesney. Stanley is impossible for James for more than one reason. Imagine, Senator James supporting a State-wide candidate for governor of Kentucky. Still it seems probable that condition may confront him.

Ex-Congressman Stanley's reputation as a lawyer has suffered somewhat from the press reports of the election crook trials now being held at Indianapolis. This may be some dark scheme of Haley, Rhea and company to injure his prospects for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. It is too bad that a man who gave up a good job, in quest of another and lost, cannot earn an honest penny without having his motives impugned.

After we elect a Republican President and Congress in 1916 it will take one year to clean up the idle factories and pass a Tariff law that protects American industries and labor. It will take another year to get to running under the provisions of a new Tariff, and two years more to get the country where it was when Wilson was elected. But you need have no fear; we will have it to our former prosperous times.—Perryville Mo.) New Republican Era.

The Executive Committee of the Kentucky Press Association recently fixed the annual meeting for Olympian Springs, June 14. The Republican State platform convention convenes at Lexington June 15. This would keep most Republican editors from attending the Association meeting. When the attention of Col. John H. Gains, Chairman of the Executive Committee, was called to this conflict, at once took steps to remedy it. The date for the Press Association will no doubt be changed to June 7.

War Not a Good Excuse.

The European war can no longer be utilized as a scapegoat for dullness, depression, hard times and unemployment in any part of the United States, according to W. S. Cousins, editor of the American Banker. Mr. Cousins does not give this merely as an expert opinion, in ex cathedra fashion. He gives facts and figures to show that so far as the United States is concerned the influence of the war "has been stimulating beyond all precedent." But it was unnecessary for him to remind us of this fact. Secretary Redfield has been making exultant reports of the enormous increase in American exports. While manufactures of war supplies contribute to the total, there has been an increase all along the line. The exports of foodstuffs have reached proportions to cause some alarm. Nor is there prospect of a falling off. Even should the Dardanelles be opened and an outlet for Russia's wheat thus afforded, there would, as Mr. Cousins points out, be no reduction in the demand for American products. In fact, such opening would provide a market heretofore closed to American goods.

That industrial depression had struck this country long before the European war began was a matter of general knowledge. The president had offered its naive explanation as to its psychological character, but this did not impress the men and women who had been thrown out of employment. In the great industrial centers the situation was so marked that it was reflected in the election return in November. The great Agricultural sections of the country had just begun to feel the effects of a home market which had been hurt by reduced buying power and also by importation of products from other lands, when the war created a demand which counteracted these tendencies. But for the war the rebuke of the national administration would have been as severe in the West as in the East.

It may be asked, in view of the stimulating effects of the war on American industries, why there is not greater prosperity. The bank statements suggest the explanation. The banks are glutted with money, which is not being loaned on long terms. Nobody except Democratic politicians has any confidence in the future as long as the Democratic party is in power. Right or wrong, it is considered hostile to business and all the rhetoric of the president and his cabinet officials cannot overcome the general feeling. It is this condition which has moved even the Democratic members of Congress, whom Senator Stone recently scolded, to predict the election of a Republican president next year.

Heart Action Restored After Man Is Pronounced Dead.

Boston, March 30.—After Willard Q. Wallace, of Pittsburg, an alleged confessed swindler, who took poison in the city prison today, had been pronounced dead, his heart action was restored by massage and he lived in an unconscious condition three hours more before he was again declared dead.

Wallace was on his way to court to answer charges of larceny by false drafts on banks at New Orleans, San Francisco and Portland, Ore., when he told an inspector that he had swallowed poison. After hospital physicians had worked over the man for an hour, they declared him dead, no heartbeat being perceptible and turned the body over to the medical examiner.

It was nine minutes later when, by the medical examiner's permission, Dr. William H. Brickley, of the hospital staff, began a trial of manual massage. An incision five inches in length was made and thru this Dr. Brickley thrust his hand and gently massaged the heart.

In fifteen minutes the color of the man's face changed from purple to red and heart action was once more apparent. With constant massaging by eight members of the hospital staff working in relays, life was maintained for three hours.

When arrested last night Wallace was allowed to keep about $200 in his possession. This he spent on dinners for himself and four men who were confined in nearby cells. "I've had a high old time for the last few months. I don't like to stop," he is said to have told the cell attendants.

The police say that Wallace had been variously known as C. K. Hitchcock, Claude Howard and S. H. Conrad.

LATEST WAR NEWS

Monday.

Italy—All the Alpine troops of the first category, born in 1883, have been called to the colors by the Italian War Department for forty-five days. The official military journal also calls to the colors all artillery and engineer reserve officers for sixty days from April 15. A largely-attended meeting was held in Rome by those who favor the taking of Trent, Trieste and Dalmatia, and a resolution was adopted requesting the Government to "regain by arms the frontiers of Italy." Troops were necessary to preserve order.

China—The negotiations between China and Japan have reached a perilous point for China. The conference failed to agree upon the questions of Japanese immigration to Manchuria, and the so-called Hanyehing demands.

Russia—The battles for the Carpathian passes continue with extreme violence. The Russians, who recently gained possession of Dukla Pass, are pressing for the possession of the heads of railroads running into Hungary.

Turkey—Trawlers continue their mine-sweeping operations in the Dardanelles. The Turks opened fire on them, but were silenced by the warships. Heavy firing was heard in the direction of the Gulf of Saros.

Germany—German submarines were active to the south of Ireland, and it is believed the Fallaba was sunk. Distress signals came from several steamers in the same vicinity.

Tuesday.

England—Upward of 150 lives were lost in the sinking by German submarines of the African liner Falaba and the British steamer Aguila. The Falaba was torpedoed in St. George's Channel, and carried a crew of ninety and about 160 passengers, and of this total only 140 were rescued. The Aguila was sunk off the coast of Ireland by German submarine U-28. Twenty-three of the crew and three passengers were lost. The Dutch steamer Amstel was blown up off Flamborough Head by a mine, the crew escaping. Replying to a deputation from the Shipbuilders' Employing Federation, who asked that total prohibition be enforced while the war lasts, David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said that the Cabinet would consider the question of prohibition carefully.

Turkey—The Russian Black Sea fleet is bombarding the forest of the Bosporus, and the Baltic fleet has been re-enforced by modern fighting units, according to Petrograd official reports. Mine sweepers are at work in the Dardanelles.

Russia—The battles in the Carpathians are proceeding with increased violence, the Russians being in possession of the western passes and advancing into Hungary.

Wednesday.

Russia—Chief interest now centers in the Russian campaign in the Carpathians, which is generally recognized as one of the most important movements of the war. Troops from Prozemysl have been brought up to aid the efforts to force the passes into the plains of Hungary. Official reports on the operations so far are conflicting.

United States—The note of the United States Government to Great Britain asking for an explanation of the Order-in-Council declaring a virtual blockade on Germany has been sent to Ambassador Page to be delivered to the British Foreign Office today. A protest has been prepared also to be sent Germany in regard to the William P. Frye case.

Allied Fleet—News of the renewed bombardment of the forts in the Dardanelles on Sunday has just been received. A report received by way of Berlin states that no impression has been made on the defenses by the fire of the warships.

Thursday.

England—Two German submarines, operating off the coast of England during the past few days, have added two more British steamers, the Flaminiau and Crown of Castille, to their list of victims. There was no loss of life. The question relating to drink, which is alleged to be causing delay in delivery of war materials, is arousing public attention in London. King George, in a letter to Lloyd-George, emphasizes the necessity of taking some action to stop excessive drinking and says he is willing to set the example.

Russia—The Germans are at a standstill in North and Central Poland, while the Russians are putting forward all their strength to force their way through the Carpathian passes, which efforts are resulting in battles of extreme violence.

France—French airmen have been busy dropping bombs on the Germans and their positions in Belgium and various sections in France. The maritime station at Bruges and a German aviation camp at Gits have been thus bombarded, and Amsterdam reports a considerable loss of life among the German soldiers near Thourout as a result of these operations.

The revival services which have been held at the Baptist church for the past ten days, closed Wednesday night. While no great revival resulted the Pastor, Rev. Pettie, has delivered some very able sermons which have been heard by large and attentive audiences and no doubt much good will result from the meeting.

The Eighteenth District Convention of the Christian church, comprising churches of Breckenridge, Butler, Davless, Hancock, McLenn, Mohlenburg and Ohio counties, will convene with the Hartford Christian church Wednesday, April 7th. A large attendance and attractive program is expected. The public will be welcome.

The following Hartford people attended the ball game at Central City between Columbus and Milwaukee: J. C. Casehier, W. S. Tinsley, Smith Hoover, W. C. Blankenship, Fred Cooper, J. C. Her, E. P. Moore, Ernest Morris, Earl Barnes, Harold Holbrook, Scott Combs, Don Tichenor, McHenry Holbrook, Willis Lyons and Owen Hunter.

English Pheasants Distributed.

The State Game and Fish Commission has received 2,500 English pheasants for Kentucky. The birds were purchased with the fund accumulated from hunters' license and fines. Each county gets 15, properly proportioned between males and females. The commission for Ohio county was received by Game Warden S. E. Riley a few days ago and he has been very careful in selecting four locations in the county where they would have the very best range, nesting places and protection from hunters. If they do well, all parts of the county will be supplied in a few years as they multiply very rapidly. They have been located on the farms of Watt Taylor, Point Pleasant, Henry Pirtle, 5 miles East of Hartford; Gny Rowan, Heflin, and W. N. Stevens, 2 miles North of Hartford. These gentlemen have agreed with Mr. Riley to have their lands posted with large placards, warning all persons against killing or injuring the pheasants and announcing the very heavy penalty for doing so. The birds are very beautiful and were viewed with delight by many people while awaiting distribution at Ellis & Bro's. Produce House.

A. S. of E. Notice.

The State Union of the A. S. of E. will convene at Hartford, Ky., April 10 at 9 o'clock a. m. All members of the order are requested to be present with their wives and children and bring a well filled basket, as the committee desires to have dinner for all who are present on this occasion. Now, fellow members, let's go to work and make this the best State meeting in the history of the organization. Every one is invited to attend and especially the farmers. It is high time we were getting busy and putting into effect some of the things we have learned in the past 12 years.

ANOTHER SOCIALIST ANSWERS TINSLEY

Not Socialism But Pauperism Worst Things We Have.

Mellentry, Ky., March 29.—Editor Republican—Under the head lines of an old writer on Socialism we see a vast storehouse of knowledge opened which we believe, had it not been kept back from the dear public, we would be living in the millennium today? The gentleman opens his epistle with the sad news that he had not written anything political on account of giving his thoughts to things more ephemeral.

Now let me say right here that if there is anything political in what he wrote my receivers broke and I failed to get it. He goes so far as to say that the worst thing we have today is Socialism. But I say the worst thing we have today is pauperism. And no doubt he doesn't know that just one mile from the mines in which he works first class coal miners are on the mercy of the county and the good people of Hartford. And he won't find it out till he steps out of that little narrow path that leads from Simmons to Walton's creek church, because his preacher will not tell him about these conditions. He says men are blown about by every wind of doctrine. I say no. There are not three thinking men in Mellentry that he could get that dope down. Had he wrung that stuff in when he was head brakeman on a mule car and had corn in one end of the sack and rocks in the other the dear people might have fallen for it. But too late now. And just listen to this. He sheds a boot leg full of tears as big as hulled walnuts about free love, and honestly, men who are learned men and get good pay for condemning Socialism never mention it at all.

Let's see how the women fare under this system. Let the gentleman go to one of the large cities, not Centertown, and he can find womanhood sold on the market and also find the snake that sells her and the brute that owns the property where she is sold, and in nine cases out of ten they are members of some of the churches and have, if you please, a license from this grand christian government to carry on his domineering business under the very shadow of your churches with their sky piercing domes.

Now, he takes a fall out of booze, and says Socialism says let a man make all the red liquor he wants to. Socialism says that's all he will make because he can't sell it at a profit and he won't sell it at all. And had he spent the sleepless nights that I've spent with a moving picture show going on all night exhibiting snakes, frogs, lugs and spiders after filling up on that rectified furniture polish that he was voting for when I was born I think his mind would change. And, furthermore, doesn't he support a system that the law gives men a right to take one barrel of whisky with fish berries and other poison, and make twenty barrels out of it?

He comes across with some dope about religion. We believe in the religion that Christ taught, peace on earth, good will toward man. Let's see where his cult stands. A short while back they started a missionary with the message of Christ to the heathen and the same vessel that carried the missionary also carried 4,000 gallons of rectified whisky. Some love eh? And of course that converted the heathen. Now, beloved, get the Socialist platform and study it with an understanding heart before you get out your surgical tools to skin us any more, for you can't talk rational about something you know nothing about.

Betting Odds on War.

London, March 30.—Betting on the outcome of the war is all the rage in London now. Several firms and individuals, through Lloyds' Exchange, have on the boards to-day the following "book" on the duration of hostilities:

That war will end before May 1, 1915, 3 to 1 against.

That war will end before June 1, 1915, 2 to 1 against.

That war will end before September 1, 1915, even money.

That war will end before December 1, 1915, 10 to 1 on.

"When Will the War End."
The time of the ending of the European war may have a most important effect upon the fate of the present national administration and the political party that supports it. Pence will undoubtedly bring again to the United States what it brought at the end of the long Napoleonic wars in 1815—a flood of foreign manufactures against which the Simmons-Underwood Tariff for revenue only will interpose a feeble barrier. There is much talk of a "devastated" Europe, but there can scarcely be such a devastation as that which followed in the wake of the contending armies that fought almost continually for well nigh 20 years a century ago—and yet Europe then regained her full industrial strength with wonderful rapidity.

Great Britain was injured scarcely at all and immediately after Waterloo was in a position to begin that process of industrial attack upon America so naively described by Henry (afterward Lord) Brougham in Parliament, as being well worth while to incur a loss upon the first exportation in order by the glut to stifle in the cradle those rising manufactures in the United States which the war had forced into existence contrary to the usual course of things.

The manufacturers of the United States are far more robust and enduring now than they were in 1815-1816, when on the conclusion of peace imports of foreign goods that had been only $13,000,000 in 1814, rose suddenly first to $113,000,000 and then to $147,000,000, and American industries were duly "stuffed." But there can be no question that there will be a tremendous pressure of foreign goods upon the American market when peace ends the present gigantic struggle—and then, if ever in our recent history, the need of a tariff honestly and efficiently protective will be felt by the American people. America will then be sought by all the recently warring nations because it will be the market that can best afford to pay for great quantities of imported merchandise.—Bulletin of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers.

A Dangerous Fad.

Every little while one of the whims of the health faddist is wrecked on the shoals of common sense. One of the latest illustrations is to be found in the revolution against the wholesale removal of tonsils from school children. A few years ago the faddists set up a great cry against enlarged tonsils, and for a time the members of their cult championed the sacrifice of the tonsil as a panacea for most human ills. They had a large following, augmented, of course by the zealous co-operation of the quack surgeon, and the result was the removal of thousands of tonsils many of which, we are told, were not diseased in any way, and had they been allowed to stay where nature placed them, never would have given the owners any trouble.

Now the tide has turned. Medical authorities, probably shocked at the alarming spread of the craze, and not willing that their profession should indorse a practice which is being fostered chiefly through the cupidity of conscienceless quacks, are warning parents against the wholesale removal of children's tonsils. They say that the operation, never without element of danger, has grown entirely too general and that more harm than good will ultimately result from an indiscriminate extirpation of the tonsils.

There are cases, and not a few, which call for such drastic treatment, but the necessity for it should be well established before the scalpel is applied. Tonsils which are slightly enlarged may never give any real trouble. Many glands of the human body are enlarged through life, but do not entail any suffering or exert any bad influence upon the general health. Many persons never know their tonsils are enlarged until they are informed of the fact by a physician. That they should go forth-with and have them removed does not speak well for their judgment, to say nothing of the sincerity of the physician who recommends such a course.—Louisville Times.

Defective Speech.

The annual visit of the Yale dramatic boys with their four playlets—by no means bad entertainment, all things considered—only emphasizes again that notable American defect, bad speech. It is a national fault on and off the stage. It includes not only imperfections in enunciation and pronunciation, but an entire neglect of developing the human voice in clarity of diction and musical quality. These youths of Yale come from one of the greatest of our educational institutions, and individually they spring from families considerably above the average in means and presumably in culture. A few of them spoke agreeably, but the general impression conveyed that the coming generation, with all its advantages, shows no improvement in the use of the organs of speech to make our spoken language melodious. The only reason for dwelling on this defect, instead of lauding the Yale Dramatic Association for adopting a high standard of achievement rather than the usual flippancy indulged in by college amateurs, is that it illustrates an American fault and the American neglect of effort to correct it. The professional stage sadly fails to set an example of correctness in elocution, and gentle speech is almost unknown in any walk of American life. The sensitive ear can make its choice of offense from among the twangs, burrs, draws and strident cries that mark our people of different national neighborhoods and different racial origins. Here is one good reason, if there exists no other, for the founding of a real national theater—that we may have in the United States one place where our language is spoken correctly and to please the ear.—Life.

Some Deposits of Mica in The United States.

Mica mining in the United States began with the opening of the Ruggles mine, in Grafton County, N. H., about 1803. Later other mines were opened in New Hampshire, which for many years furnished practically all the mica in this country. A report by Douglas H. Sterrett, recently issued by the United States Geological Survey as Bulletin 580-F, describes the Ruggles mine as well as other mica deposits in the United States.

Mica is a valuable mineral in the industrial world, where it meets a demand not supplied by any other material, so that the sources of supply are both of present and future importance. Many good mica deposits are known in the United States and the production is increasing. The imports of mica are generally greater than the domestic production but the mines of this country could be made to supply all but that small part of the domestic demand which calls for the Canadian "amber" mica. Good mica mines have been worked in North Carolina, New Hampshire, South Dakota, Idaho, New Mexico, Virginia, South Carolina, and Alabama, and promising deposits are known in several other States.

The occurrence of mica deposits in many countries insure future supplies of mica for the world for some years to come and the numerous undeveloped mica deposits of the United States may be considered among these resources. Under present conditions the mica deposits of the United States will probably continue to yield a considerable part of the mica used in this country.

A copy of the report may be obtained on application to the Director of the United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

New Uniform.

Old fashioned baseball used to be played without the use of lawns. —Leitchfield Gazette.

Some of Us at Least.

We all ought to love President Wilson, he has kept us out of war and worn.—Green River Republican.

Can't Freeze Them.

Farmers tell us that the cold winter killed all the peaches, but cold weather never affects the kind who wear Easter hats.—Elizabethtown News.

Always Settling.

Strange as it may seem, newspaper pictures of noted women addressed by war always presents them smiling.—Elizabethtown Mirror.

A Striking Resemblance.

The Democratic donkey sometimes looks very much like a jack ass and we can see a growing resemblance of this kind in Kentucky.—Elizabethtown News.

Of No Interest To Him.

The days and nights are of the same length, but this information will not be of any interest whatever to the fellow who has to shiver out of the heat and start the fire about 4 a. m.—Madisonville Hustler.

Battling a Thousand.

Speaking of V. T. S. graduate and minister well known here who is conducting a revival at that place, the Elizabethtown News says: "Kasey at the bat, is sending some hard drives from the Methodist church into the field of sin."—Todd County Times.

Getting The Habit.

Farmers and townpeople all over the country are rapidly adopting the new policy of using writing paper and envelopes with their names and addresses neatly printed thereon. It has many advantages. It prevents the numerous errors in the spelling of names, insures correctness of address, and guarantees the prompt return of your letter in the event of no-delivery. It is no more expensive than the buying of stationery in small lots in the old way, and adds a distinctive air of respectability and refinement to every home. It is a good thing, and has come to stay—and grow.—Oldham Era.

Psychologically Settled.

The government's "labor employment" bureau is open. It was established in conformity with the President's Jackson day inquiry: "Don't you think it would be a pretty good idea for the Democratic method of helping the working man of America?" There was a chorus of assent to that proposition; it was pretty generally admitted that if the Democratic party didn't get busy on that job, after having succeeded up to this time only in throwing three million men out of work, the talk about a second term for Mr. Wilson didn't assume much importance. And now we have the Democratic scheme of assistance in operation; a government employment bureau to get the men and the jobs together. The only difficulty is that the idle men are real and the unemployed jobs are purely psychological,—proving that Prof. Wilson was half right when he mentioned psychology in connection with employment. When the government employment bureau gets through it will have the biggest directory of unemployed men ever collected in this country under either public or private auspices. But it is a safe bet that we will not hear much about the long list of empty places which this government bureau has filled or expects to fill. The vacant jobs are like the pioneer "milk sick"—all over in the next township. But all the scheme illustrates the mental methods of our professorial President. Three million men are out of work. Easy enough. Start an employment bureau! The French princess was told that the people had no bread to eat, suggested: "Let them eat cake, then."—National Republican.

After Dinner Stories.

The lanky youth who occupied a seat in a passenger coach persisted in sticking his head and shoulders out of the window. The brakeman was passing through the coach, and he touched the youth on the back. "Better keep your head inside the window," advised the brakeman. "I kin look out of the window if I want to," answered the youth. "I know you can," warned the brakeman. "But if you damage any of the iron work on the bridges you'll pay for it."

J. D. Leckie tells an amusing story of editorial ingenuity. Some years ago the first three horses in the Lincoln Handicap were Ob, Dean Swift and Roseate Dawn. A press agency in London wired the result to an Australian paper as follows: "Lincoln Ob Dean Swift Roseate Dawn." The subeditor who was in charge had never heard of the Lincoln Handicap, and for some time puzzled vainly over the mysterious message. Finally he came to the conclusion that "Ob," must stand for obit, the Latin word expressing a death notice. He accordingly turned out the following paragraph, which duly appeared in print: "We deeply regret to announce the death at Lincoln of the celebrated Dean Swift, the author of that favorite hymn, 'The Roseate Hues of Early Dawn.'"

It is not on record whether he was promoted for his snurtnies.

"Then you don't think I practice what I preach, eh?" queried the minister in talking with one of the deacons at a meeting. "No sir; I don't replied the deacon. "You've been preaching on the subject of resignation for two years, an' ye haven't resigned yet."

Empty Bottle Cast in Nile Comes Back Full.

A. B. Coates, a well known miningman, of Virginia, Minn., got a surprise recently. It was a bottle of whisky from a Kentucky distillery that he had not ordered. The odd thing about the gift was that the liquor was in a bottle that Mr. Coates emptied with a party of friends while steaming down the River Nile in Africa about a year ago, and threw into the murky stream. In the bottle he had placed a slip of paper bearing his name and address. Some one found the bottle and forwarded it to the distillery, where it was filled and sent to Mr. Coates with the liquor factory's compliments. The original bottle was presented to Mr. Coates by a local friend when he started on his African trip.

Rheumatic Pains Relieved.

Why suffer from rheumatism when relief may be had at so small a cost? Mrs. Elmer Hatch, Peru, Ind., writes, "I have been subject to attacks of rheumatism for years. Chamberlain's Liniment always relieves me immediately, and I take pleasure in recommending it to others." 25 and 50 cent bottles. For sale by all dealers.

No One Should Be Deceived.

No one should be deceived by the specious arguments which Democratic leadership devises to mislead the people and conceal the actual effect of the revised tariff. The result has been to cripple seriously many of the enterprises which prior to Democratic ascendancy at Washington were enjoying remarkable prosperity, furnishing well paid employment to thousands of American wage earners and comfort and happiness to the families of the workers. The Tariff and nothing else was mainly accountable for the "slump" in American business which began as soon as the revised schedules came into operation.—Troy Times.

How to Protect Poultrymen.

The way, and the only way, to protect our poultrymen from the competition of foreign eggs is by a Protective Tariff. Up to the advent to power of the present National Administration the duty on eggs was 5 cents a dozen. While that law was on the statute books there was no trouble with Chinese eggs. But the poultrymen, who are asking the State to protect them from the evils of national legislation, are in an unfortunate political situation. With due warning from Mr. Kent himself while a candidate they elected William Kent to Congress, where he voted for the law which those who elected him are asking the Legislature to emasculate. And that is not all. After having so voted, and while openly standing by his Free-Trade guns, the same Congressional district gave but 28-166 votes to Mr. Hart, who is a Protectionist, as against 43,390 to Mr. Kent and the Democratic candidate, Mr. Meldon—both Free-Traders. We suggest that the best way for the poultrymen of the First Congressional district to avoid the competition of Chinese eggs is to foregather with the lumbermen, the wool growers and the fruit growers of that district and put themselves in standing by sending a Republican Protectionist Representative to Congress.—San Francisco Chronicle.

COULD SCARCELY WALK ABOUT

And For Three Summers Mrs. Vincent Was Unable to Attend to Any of Her Housework.

Pleasant Hill, N. C.—"I suffered for three summers," writes Mrs. Walter Vincent, of this town, "and the third and last time, was my worst. I had dreadful nervous headaches and prostration, and was scarcely able to walk about. Could not do any of my housework. I also had dreadful pains in my back and sides and when one of those weak, sinking spells would come on me, I would have to give up and lie down, until it wore off. I was certainly in a dreadful state of health, when I finally decided to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I firmly believe I would have died if I hadn't taken it. After I began taking Cardui, I was greatly helped, and all three bottles relieved me entirely. I fattened up, and grew so much stronger in three months, I felt like another person altogether." Cardui is purely vegetable and gentle-acting. Its ingredients have a mild, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution. Cardui makes for increased strength, improves the appetite, tones up the nervous system, and helps to make pale, sallow cheeks, fresh and rosy. Cardui has helped more than a million weak women, during the past 50 years. It will surely do for you, what it has done for them. Try Cardui today.
